Digital assets and blockchain technology are powering the next evolution of the internet, empowering individuals, accelerating innovation, and unlocking new economic opportunities. Yet, the current regulatory framework stifles innovation, creates uncertainty for market participants, and leaves consumers without sufficient protections. To unlock the full potential of this technology and ensure the United States remains a global leader in financial and technological innovation, Congress must enact clear, forward-looking legislation. This hearing will give Members the opportunity to examine the Committee’s digital asset market structure framework, the CLARITY Act of 2025.

Legislation Noticed

1. H.R. 3633 - CLARITY Act of 2025 (Hill/Thompson): This legislation creates a comprehensive regulatory framework for digital asset markets. The legislation sets clear, functional standards designed to protect consumers while promoting responsible innovation.
